FAA's Media Production

Bill McDonald and Marvin Reyes have teamed together for the past 5 years to create a highly talented and skilled tandem capable of handling projects from the most basic to the extremely complex. Their ability to originate broadcast quality media productions is not only appreciated within the Agency, but has been recognized by several television/film/media award organizations. While working in the Media Production Department for Facilities Management Division, ASU-400 the duo has been won the top award given by Cine, Tele, and AXIEM for some of their original productions. In particular, the Cine Award given for the documentary featuring Hispanic contributions in aviation, Nuestra Herencia, "Building on the Legacy" was an award also won by Spike Lee and ABC's 20/20 the two years prior. Cine and Tele both awarded their top spots to the team for Collision Course, "What are the odds?" An Air Traffic training aide that hi-lighted their ability to create realistic 3D animations while recreating a near tragic event. The two are currently producing VOICE Live!, a bi-weekly FAA news web cast directed toward first line supervisors. Though first line supervisors are the target, the web casts are available to anyone who has the <http://videoontheweb.faa.gov/Archive-WebCast.htm>.

Through content creation is what the shop excels in they provide many other services to the FAA Lines of Businesses such as video tapings, satellite broadcasts, duplication, CD-Rom/DVD, and web-casting. The facility includes a TV studio production area, broadcast TV control room, satellite downlink and uplink, two digital edit suites, tape library, and a live web-casting engine.
